What is an apprenticeship?

An apprenticeship is when an individual works and learns at the same time.

As an apprentice, you will be working in a real job where you will be employed by a company, have a contract of employment, get paid a salary and be entitled to statutory benefits such as holiday and sick pay

What makes an apprenticeship different to other jobs?

What makes an apprenticeship different to another job is that you will also be working towards a recognised apprenticeship standard alongside your job. These standards will be directly relevant to the job that you are doing, whatever role you are working in.

What kind of apprenticeships are there?

There are apprenticeships available at Intermediate, Advanced, Higher and Degree ranging from level 2 to level 7. These cover more than 280 industries and 1500 job roles in sectors.

From Nursing to Graphic Design, Horticulture to Electric Vehicle Engineering, Advertising to Nuclear Decommissioning.

Most people think that apprenticeships are only available in a limited number of job roles and only in certain sectors like construction or retail. But that isn't true - there are literally thousands of jobs out there working in all sorts of different exciting organisations.

Which companies offer apprenticeships?

It could be that you end up working with a large company who you might have heard of before, or it could be that you end up working with a smaller business that you may not have heard of before.

Some small companies can have amazing opportunities for apprentices, you might get to work on some really innovative and creative projects, or even have the chance to travel overseas.

It's important you do your research and see what you can find out about the company before you start applying.

Do you get a job at the end of the apprenticeship?

Most apprentices do. A survey conducted by the National Apprenticeship Service showed that the majority of apprentices (90%) either stay employed with the employer that they have completed their apprenticeship with, or will go on to find another job with a different employer. Some apprentices decide at the end of their apprenticeship that they want to go on to further study, such as starting a full time degree at university or college.

For more information on available apprenticeships you can visit the Find An Apprenticeship website:

www.findapprenticeship.service.gov.uk/apprenticeshipsearch

"My Apprenticeship was great as I was learning the skills I needed and gaining hands on experience whilst doing my qualification. By the time I finished my apprenticeship I felt really well prepared to be working as a qualified stylist"

Lucy Metcalfe,
Level 2 Hairdressing
Apprenticeship

How are apprenticeships delivered?

The way that apprenticeships are delivered will vary depending on the employer that you work for and the kind of job role you have as an apprentice. Some employers prefer to have their apprentices learning away from the work place for the first few weeks or months of the apprenticeship, others might prefer for you to go to a training provider for 1 day per week and others might prefer for you to learn 100% on-the-job. This next section explores these options in a bit more detail.

What is the difference between on-the-job and off-the-job training?

On-the-job and off-the-job training are phrases that are used a lot with apprenticeships. In summary, the main difference between the two are:

On-the-job this is where you learn in the workplace. You will be developing your skills by working with colleagues who will show you how to carry out certain tasks. This training could be formal (in a structured session) or informal (where it might be unplanned).

Off-the-job this is when you learn and develop your skills and knowledge away from your immediate place of work. It might be that you use a computer to access some on-line learning, or you might leave the workplace to attend a training centre where you will learn in a classroom or workshop with other apprentices.

How do you find an apprenticeship?

You can find apprenticeships using the Find An Apprenticeship website. To register just follow these 3 simple steps:

1. Create an account at:
www.gov.uk/apply-apprenticeship
2. Check your emails for your activation code
3. Use your activation code to verify your account

You can also contact your local careers service, training providers and colleges, follow companies on twitter, Facebook and LinkedIn as many will advertise through social media, or speak to family and friends.

When do you need to start applying for an apprenticeship?

Applying for an apprenticeship is very different to applying to 6th form, college or university.

The jobs are not all advertised on the one date and they do not all start in September. Jobs are advertised throughout the year on the Find An Apprenticeship website. You will need to check the website regularly to view the different jobs available.

What if I have already found a job?

If you already have an employer in place who has agreed to offer you an apprenticeship, they will need to find a training organisation to support you with the training element of your programme. Your employer can contact The Apprenticeship Hub for guidance on 01904 221682 or at info@apprenticeship-hub.co.uk

An Apprentice's Experience

"After leaving school I went to York college where I studied A Levels for a year before deciding they weren't for me, I then went on to complete an Extended Diploma in Art & Design.

After completing my course, I wasn't sure what to do next, I didn't want to go to university as I wasn't sure what career I wanted to do and didn't want to get into debt. When I began searching for a career, I realised that most jobs need experience or qualifications. This then led me to looking into apprenticeships, as I would be able to get both.

Prior to starting my apprenticeship, in Digital Marketing, I'd never been in an office let alone worked in one. Since starting I have learnt how important marketing is within a business and how the work I produce helps promote our company. I am involved with many tasks in the office. I look after the company's different social media channels, promote events, and help with marketing campaigns.

I have already been introduced to so many new people and new ideas. I look forward to being able to create marketing campaigns and see how much they impact our business. I have been able to use some skills I already had from school and college and develop them much further and see how I can use them in a real life situation.

I would definitely recommend apprenticeships. You are given the opportunity to gain valuable skills which are transferable to any career you wish to pursue, with the added bonus of getting paid and gaining qualifications!

Apprenticeships set you up and give you the freedom to work in real life situations and you can really see how your work impacts a business."

NYBEP education and business in partnership

OUR VISION: To inspire and nurture talent for tomorrow's workforce

NYBEP (NORTH YORKSHIRE BUSINESS AND EDUCATION PARTNERSHIP)

We are passionate about developing talent by bringing the worlds of education and business together and we are specialists in collaborating with them to make a difference. Based in York we have delivered activities to young people aged 5 - 19 from Cumbria all the way to Surrey. Annually we connect with around 40,000 young people to provide work-related activities that focus on career exploration, employer engagement, information advice and guidance, developing employability skills and knowledge, understanding the value of STEM (science, technology, engineering and maths) and raising aspirations.

Degree Apprenticeships

A real alternative to the traditional University route, degree apprenticeships provide you with an opportunity to earn and learn with no student loan fees to pay back!

All apprentices are earning at least the national minimum apprenticeship wage though many employers pay significantly more. Depending on the apprenticeship these can take between 1 to 5 years depending on previously achieved qualifications.

Large employers are actively recruiting including NHS, Barclays, Yorkshire Building Society and many more!!

"I didn't want to pay for a university course that would only teach me about something without giving me any actual experience. With an apprenticeship you have a running start in the industry, you don't have to start from the beginning"

Ryan Hirst,
Advanced Apprenticeship
in Digital Marketing

What are Traineeships?

Traineeships are an ideal opportunity for young people aged 16-24 (and 25 with an Education Health Care plan) who are motivated to get a job but are in need of the skills and experience which employers are looking for when recruiting employees.

Traineeships provide a great pathway into the world of work and trainees can access much needed support from providers and employers to set them on their career pathway. This includes:

From the training provider:

- training to prepare you for work, including CV writing and what to expect in the workplace
- support to improve your English, maths and digital skills if you need it
- sector focused vocational learning to help prepare you for your apprenticeship or job and recognition of your learning

From the employer:

- a high-quality work placement of at least 70 hours
- an interview for an apprenticeship or job if available, or an exit interview with written feedback

To find out more about apprenticeships visit <https://www.gov.uk/guidance/traineeship-information-for-trainees>, or you can contact your local training providers. If you are in receipt of benefits, you can also contact your job centre advisor.

The logo for Traineeships features a stylized orange and red arc above the word "Traineeships" in a bold, black, sans-serif font.
